An important part of business development is helping companies connect. The Saskatchewan Life Science Showcase is a new series of networking events launched by Ag-West Bio to give companies an opportunity to talk about their background, their research, or to share their strategies. They may be established, Saskatchewan-based companies who have business or research news to share; they may be companies relocating to Saskatchewan, or traveling through the city, and of strategic interest to our community; or they may be entrepreneurs working towards success in our province.

Wilf Keller, president and CEO of Ag-West Bio, believes it is important for the community to be informed - aware of what other companies are doing. "The Showcase is an opportunity to meet the company representatives, discover potential areas where collaboration might be beneficial, or open doors for investment opportunities."
